

Hi,

I'm an investor writing with regards to the odd lot proposal. I would like to see the odd lot pricing as soon as possible as opposed to waiting. My reason may be an unfounded one, but I find it strange that whenever I make a purchase, be it limit or market, my fill price does not match that stated by the level II data. While the fill price is often below the ask price shown it is often at a price that doesn't show up on the data I have available. For example if my purchase price is $10 my fill price will be 9.995. If I try to put a limit order at 9.995 my brokerage says that it must be a two decimal purchase. This makes me think that there are several odd lots at prices that don't show up on level II data, meaning that it is a way for a large seller to hide the fact that they are selling many shares (and it's hidden because it's an odd lot that has more than two decimal points on the sale price).

With the above being said, please consider to require odd lot pricing to be shown on the feeds as soon as possible.

Regards,
Said Alonzo
